New tenants for Real Development

BY DAN VOORHIS
The Wichita Eagle

Two new tenants are moving to buildings owned by Real Development.

Youth for Christ will move into the Petroleum Building, 221 S. Broadway, and the Kansas World Trade Center will take space in the former SC Telcom building, 125 N. Market.

Youth for Christ is taking 2,983 square feet after it sold its building at First and Volusia in order to grow from eight employees to 13.

It moved downtown because it changed the way it works. One of its programs, dealing with teenage mothers, was based at its old building. But the group has since moved that program to a local church.

The group also works with teens in the juvenile justice system, helping rehabilitate them and finding them work when they get out.

The downtown move was perfect, said Ryan Allen, the group's national field director.

"We wanted to be in the heart of the community," he said.

The Kansas World Trade Center is moving from its location in the John T. Arnold building at Douglas and Market to 2,588 square feet in the former SC Telcom Building, now called Wichita Executive Center.

The center has three staff and two interns.
